What helps most of us keep straight when we dreadfully want to go crooked, or steady when we are tempted to crack up?

The love, the persuasiveness of some people.

What is it that most of all would utterly wreck our lives?

To have some people sit us down.

Not abstractions but persons most deeply determine our lives.

Every unfair discrimination a white man practices against a Negro, every man who raised up a Gentile against Jews, or by a Jew against Gentiles, every expression of contempt against a whole race or nation, every act of meanness, dishonesty, prejudice and bad temper makes his possible the solution of mankind's greatest problem.

"Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise repent." ... Today those words come not alone from Jesus but as well from a strange second to be singing a duet with him - modern science. Shattering the atom, in retrospect, may prove to be more important than all the rest of World War II, and its threatened consequence pairs up with Christ today - a strange, momentous combination - to say to us,
 Except ye repent, ye shall all perish.

The voice which says that to us now is modern science, especially in view of the atomic bomb.
 We invented it, we used it; we blotted out at a flash over a hundred thousand civilians, men, women and children. When our self-justifications are all in, every one is more the less horrified at the implications of what we did. Saying that Japan was guilty and dropped it on its enemies. The mother and father of the bomb and Nagasaki did not deserve it - The usual fact that Japan was not a great power and it was - "What a great fact -"

The world has narrowed while interests have expanded, because every considerable community is now composite, multigroup; more apart because every interest and every group become more concentrated, more compartmentalized, more organized. Men must somehow be taught that difference is not separateness, and that community is not identity.

From forty to fifty million people in the United States possess all the time or some of the time the feeling that they are not wholly incorporated in the American community.

Government cannot abolish discrimination --- certainly not in any country in which the people retain any rudiments of liberty. Law cannot order men to abandon their prejudices, but it can strengthen or weaken the conditions under which prejudice develops

Room for a Soldier. 'Lay him in the clover
 The loved the fields, and they shall be his core;
 Make his mound with hers who called him once her lover;
 Where the rain may rain upon it Where the sun may shine upon it Where the lamb hath lain upon it And the bee will die upon it.

Bear him to no dismal tomb under city churches;
 Take him to the fragrant fields, by the silver birch,
 Where the whippoorwill shall mourn, where the owl perches.
 Make his mound with sunshine on it.

Thomas William Parsons.

For the Negro of the Deep South, a gradual process of enfranchisement, accompanied by appropriate advances in Negro education and Negro opportunity, would be more feasible, and might be more desirable, than an all-atonce revolution of Southern ways.

What can be sought without any qualification or time interval is the complete equality of the Negro and White before the law.

Robert Mac Iver.

Men have brought their powers of subduing the forces of nature to such a pitch that by using them they could now very easily exterminate one another to last man. They know this, - hence arises a great part of their current unrest, their dejection, their mood of apprehension.

For it can hardly be said that the ideology or the vision of a brave new world ever encompassed Kultur's innocent people, children and adults alike, behind barbed wire. Yet the concentration camps flourish again, and on the island of Cyprus complete restriction patrols the barbed wire in camps not too unlike those democracy forgot to abolish. Under the aegis of democracy, thousands of displaced persons are still regimented in Europe.

The truth is, he missed his chains. Like many another, he came to realize that they had become a necessary part of his apparel. Nothing in his story is more poignant than the sadness which inundated him when, at fifty, his dream of liberty became a reality and was freed from what he thought was bondage. During the next nine years until his death -- he sensed that freedom in itself could be a bondage. He had lived so long "to other people" that he could not happily fill his own emancipated hours. Time stood still for him and was empty in its idleness.

"But he liked his job better than he guessed, and was lost when he retired from it. The routine of working - - - - - at once supported and soothed him. It comforted him in his loneliness and appealed to what was essentially gregarious in his nature. - - - - - He missed the amiable ease of an office where, though he labored faithfully, he could still find time to write some of his best letters. He missed the companionship of his "old desk fellows" - his "co-brethren of the quill". He missed "the hot huddle of rational creatures." He missed, too, being able to excuse his habitual tardiness by such an explanation as -- "I m. make up for that by g-going away early.

What good will this memory do me
When I take it into the grave?

And these thoughts that wander thru me. —

Will there be one to save?

It matters not our being born
Or being unborn or dead.

Who can have time to be forlorn When death has gone to his head?

Culture is strong and pervasive, and the national character which is the embodiment of local culture is acquired above all in the earlier years of life; will power alone is not enough to modify those motives and ways of viewing the universe which spring from unrecognized and unconscious sources; the majority of mankind cannot remold themselves by taking thought.

Consequently the greater number of immigrants though they had rejected as much of Europe as they could, were still in complete Americans; their persons, their characters, their ways of thought, usually their accent, carried the stigmata of the Europe they had rejected.

The American school is, in the first instance, a social device, and an extremely successful one for stamping the American character on children, whatever their backgrounds and origins may be; it is only secondarily an institution for implanting and transmitting knowledge.

The attainment of complete Americanism is judged principally by the eye, only secondarily by the ear. The position of minorities in America can only be understood if it is remembered that the criteria for Americanism are, in descending order of importance, appearance, clothes, food, housing, amenities, ideology and language, and that only the fully American can be considered fully human; for, be it remembered, Americanism is an act of will, and failure to achieve complete Americanism is an ~~accidental~~ individual fault much more than it is a misfortune.

00 - - - the noble British nation 30 seems to fall from its

 00 and appears to cower

 30 ground
 00 And tell sad stories of the death 30 of Kings.

Here dead lie we because we did not choose

To live and shame the land from which we sprung.

Life to be sure, is nothing much to lose;

But young men think it is, and we were young.

JUNE

1

SATURDAY

Loveliest of trees, the cherry now
 Is hung with bloom along the bough,
 And stands about the woodland side Wearing white for Easter tide

Now of my threescore years and ten,
 Twenty will not come again,
 And take from seventy springs a score
 It only leaves me fifty more.

And since to look at things in bloom
 Fifty springs are little room,
 About the woodlands I will go To see the cherry hung with snow
 R. H.

 any tongue must follow this counsel of Aristotle, to speak as the common people do,
 to think as wise men do,

Personnel, though in theory they are men and women, have only to be called personnel to lose their full status as human beings. They do not go, they proceed. They do not have, they are (or more often are not) in possession of. They do not ask, they make application for. Want, it is true, they do not know but deficiencies and requirements are just as inconvement."

"This was one of those awful periods when the noble British nation ... appears to cower from the menace of foreign peril, frothing pious platitudes while foemen forge their arms."

(f.s.)

Churchill

The Gathering Storm Vol I

On the night of Feb 20, 1938, when Anthony

Eden resigned from Neville Chamberlain's Cabinet, Mr. Churchill says that the "dark waters of despair" held him sleepless.

He seemed to be watching Eden, one ^{strong} young figure standing up against long, dismal drawling tides of drift and surrender and failing. He watched daylight creep in through the windows and saw the vision of Death."

To Mr. Churchill, the shadow of Shakespeare, Milton and Macaulay is as natural as a London fog.

"There never was a war more easy to stop than that which has just wrecked
what was left of the world from the previous struggle."

It was his purpose, writing this book, to show how the second world war might have been prevented by a stalwart England and a staunch France (and possibly an America not mired in " normalcy") how "the malice of the wicked was reinforced by the weakness of the virtuous" how evil in effect a comfortable
"middle course" proved to be.
